

The music on this recording is classified as free jazz, but that term doesn't do justice to the evocative, theatrical, often hair-raising sounds herein. Some are dreamlike, others nightmarish. Lines are incanted hypnotically and mutate subtly. You'll hear a chirping flute that could be an agitated bird; a marching band with an air of menace; a saxophone that lets out a ghoulish cackle. All the while, an unexpected lyricism brightens even the darkest corners.

The leader is bassist Steve Tintweiss, a long-distance runner in an exceptionally challenging field. This recording, which had long sat untouched in Steve's archive, captures a night in 1980 when his Spacelight Band played in a new-music concert series at the Loeb Student Center of New York University.

By that time, Steve, who had grown up in Brooklyn and Queens, was a fifteen-year jazz veteran. While still a teenager, he had played on Patty Waters Sings, a bone-chilling underground milestone; Steve went on to work for years with the pianist on that album, Burton Greene. In 1970, he joined the last tour of saxophonist Albert Ayler, another avant-garde giant, who died that November.

Steve founded the Spacelight Band in 1976 and maintained it until 2003. Like him, the other members had carved out firm positions in the vanguard of free jazz. Genie Sherman, with her instrumentalized, sometimes wordless vocals, was a muse of that scene. Another of its fixtures was the bristling saxophonist Charles Brackeen, a child of the Deep South. Byard Lancaster, a multi-reed player and fearless improviser, had leapt into view on a 1966 album by the pioneering free-jazz drummer Sunny Murray. Drummer and percussionist Lou Grassi kept one foot in experimental music and the other in straight-ahead jazz.

The pieces here, all by Steve, are filled with surprise. "Spring Raga" borrows the Indian musical tradition of a set scale used as a springboard for improvisation. In "Risk-O-Disk," Steve's growingly insistent bass serves as a snake charmer for Byard Lancaster, whose flute-playing rises sinuously into the stratosphere. The same thing happens on "Vermont Tune," where Genie wails like a woman possessed.

"Love's Fortune" finds the band in a trance, repeating and embroidering on a phrase whose rhythmic shifts keep things constantly off-balance. Genie's syncopated drone—"to love to love to love you"—suggests a woman tossing and turning in a dream that won't end; then she breaks into an anguished soliloquy.

That night, says Steve, "everyone was really in tune with the music and one another." As usual, the Spacelight Band blew people's minds. "People would come back after a concert and say, 'That tune that you did, what was that called? I can't get it out of my head.' They'd start singing it, and talk to me about the music and their impressions of it." Now that experience comes rushing out of the past, as vivid and immediate as before.

— James Gavin, New York City, 2022 [James Gavin's books include biographies of Chet Baker, Peggy Lee, and George Michael.]

CD 1	CD 2
1. The Theme / Man Alone *	1:00	1. Knowledge is Power *	6:54
2. Spring Raga	5:26	2. Flash!	9:46
3. Whistle Stop Tour / I Lust You	6:33	3. Ash Dung Blues Bowl	11:56
4. Love's Fortune	6:50	4. Vermont Tune	10:52
5. Risk-O-Disk	8:39	5. Do Not Look Back	5:02
6. Marion	6:50	6. [closing remarks and credits]	1:11
7. Abandoned Dance	8:29	Total CD 1	43:47
[break announcement]		Total CD 2	45:41

* These tracks were world-premiered at this concert.

All compositions by Steven Tintweiss (Inkwhite Productions/ASCAP)
 Recorded November 8, 1980 in the Eisner and Lubin Auditorium at New York University's Loeb Student Center, New York City. Presented by NYU Program Board New Music Showcases, Ted Herman, Coordinator
 Produced by Steve Tintweiss for INKY DoT MEDIA LLC, an artist-owned independent label

This project was made using ST Archives Nakamichi cassette tapes ST 0101 and ST 0102 combined with 1/2 track 15 ips dbx stereo reels ST 0234, ST 0235, ST 0236, ST 0237
 Digital synchronizing and 4-channel stereo mix by Joe Lizzi
 Transfers & mastering by Joe Lizzi and Ben Young at van Alst Sound-East, Brooklyn NY

Designed by multiple GRAMMY recipient Susan Archie at World of anArchie
 Cover painting by Ellie Ali © 2022 All Rights Reserved, Used by Permission of the Artist. Flyer photo by Doug Leblang. Liner notes by James Gavin
 Additional concert performance funding provided by Meet the Composer (New Music USA)

IDM 2022 CD 007 | INKY.MEDIA
 ©©1980 + 2022 INKY DoT MEDIA LLC
 MADE IN AMERICA | ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

^^
 UPC GOES HERE

GLUE FLAP

GLUE FLAP

GLUE FLAP

5.366"

5.442"

5.442"

LOVE'S FORTUNE
 //: I Would Love to Love to Love You.
 I Would Love to Love to Love You.
 I Would Love to Love to Love You.
 I Would Love to Love to Love You.
 [repeat at will]
 Soliloquy
 You know, I would really love to love to love you.
 Each day that passes has me thinking about you.
 I only know your voice, passing through your whispering lips.
 Each hour the Fortune Wheel spins the Ace of Hearts cries a lonely moon.
 Imagination will never replace what could so easily be.
 My want, I want, I want to, want to, want to, want to.

FLASH!
 There'll Come a Time When You Listen
 Dangling Chains and Whispering Bells.
 There'll Come a Time When You Miss Me.
 Dangling Chains and Whispering Bells.
 [unison bridge] ou ou ou ou ou, ooh ou ou ou, Ou ou ou.

—music and lyrics composed by Steven Tintweiss

inky DOT MEDIA

INKY DoT MEDIA

STEVE TINTWEISS SPACELIGHT BAND LIVE AT NYU 1980

IDM CD 007

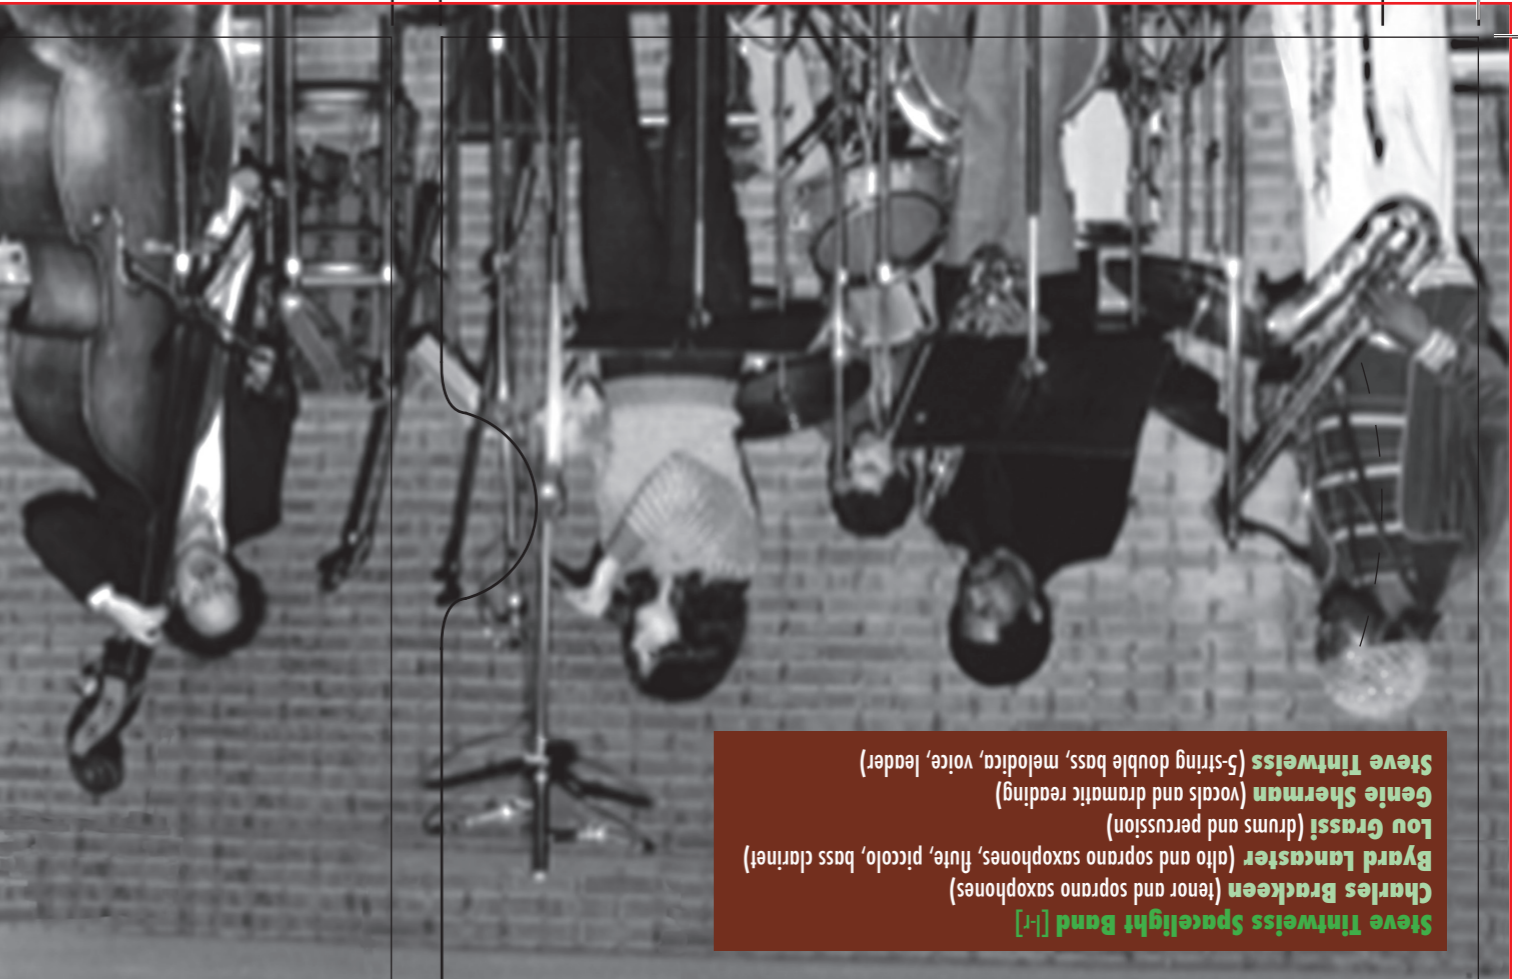

steve tintweiss
 spacelight band

live at NYU:1980

BYARD
 LANCASTER
 CHARLES BRACKEEN
 GENIE
 SHERMAN
 STEVE TINTWEISS
 LOU GRASSI

Steve Tintweiss Spacelight Band [L-R]
 Charles Brackeen (tenor and soprano saxophones)
 Byard Lancaster (alto and soprano saxophones, flute, piccolo, bass clarinet)
 Lou Grassi (drums and percussion)
 Genie Sherman (vocals and dramatic reading)
 Steve Tintweiss (5-string double bass, melodia, voice, leader)

COLOR